The YMCA National Championship Meet today was great. Yesterday I had a great swim in the 50 Meter Breaststroke. This meet so far has been one of the best meets I have been to because of the great location. Washington D.C. is my favorite part of the country (other than Texas). In addition to the great location, the meet has been run with great precision and the pool has been great. When I first jumped in I knew this was going to be a great meet. The pool is incredibly fast and a great place to swim. The swimmers here have been exceptionally nice. I would like to wish everyone the best for the rest of the meet!
